Terry OLIVER has extensive experience as a high risk operator and instructor having spent 4-1/2 years on a special operations team, 2 years on an explosive disposal unit and over 20 years as an instructor of confrontation management. He has served with Hamilton Police Service for over 17 years and currently works as a patrol officer. In 2001 Terry opened Close Quarter Academy which was created in response to a growing need within our society for realistic self defense training that can be learned quickly and effectively. Terry has instructed over 4000 students in all areas of personal protection.

As a highly qualified Use of Force, Officer Safety, Firearms and Defensive Tactics Instructor he has created, implemented and taught programs for drug teams, special operations units, veteran officers, companies and private citizens. In 1993 he was seconded to The Ontario Police College and taught Defensive Tactics Firearms and Use of Force programs to recruits, veteran officers and Use of Force Instructor candidates for 2-1/4 years. Terry also taught the above disciplines at his own department for 3 years. He was the head instructor of the Hamilton Police Service Self Defense Club for two years.

"I have participated in, reviewed and taught the components of the Police Tactical Training Program. As a qualified Police Use of Force Instructor I find that each and every component and technique in the program meets the Use of Force guidelines, i.e. using the minimum amount of force necessary to control a suspect."
